D1. Three days after the upcoming federal election is over, Canadian and European officials will begin negotiating a broad agreement to integrate Canada's economy with the 27 nations of the European Union. Despite how important such a deal could be for Canadians, the federal government has so far turned down requests by the media and concerned citizens to see the draft text of the agreement. Do you believe that the federal government should make public the draft text of this new Canada-European Union trade deal before the October 14 federal election vote?	Yes, draft text of deal should be made public	930	77.4%
